FOUR GENERATIONS OF QUALITY. ONE TRUSTED PARTNER.

At Kuntry Kettle, food processing is more than a service—it's a reflection of our values—focusing on Kingdom values such as simplicity, honesty, and integrity. What began on our great-grandfather's farm and orchard has grown into a trusted name in custom food manufacturing, serving brand owners and distributors across the country.

We're all about custom solutions, giving you the freedom of contracted food manufacturing without the burden of in-house production. Every batch is made fresh to order in our cGMP Audited facility, consistently scoring 95%+ for quality and safety, and delivered directly to your warehouse.

Family-owned and operated for four generations, Kuntry Kettle combines old-fashioned flavor with modern production standards to bring you jams, fruit butters, salsas, and tomato products your customers will love.

THE RECIPE THAT BUILT A LEGACY

We started making apple butter in the 60's using Great-Grandma's recipe in an old copper kettle over a wood fire, stirred by hand with a long wooden paddle.

In the early years, our family sold apple butter only at our market on the farm. As more folks started asking to buy wholesale, Grandpa bought our first stainless steel kettle in the early 70's and built a new facility. Before long, other orchards were asking us to private label products for them. Business continued to grow, and in 1986, Grandpa passed the fruit butter business on to Dad, James. He expanded our offerings to include jams and jellies, sweetened with either sugar or fruit juice.

Today, as the fourth generation, we're honored to carry on the tradition. Using Great-Grandma's original recipes in our cGMP Audited facility, we're still making homemade goodies that taste just like "Grandma's Cookin."
